ANOTHER LETTER.

"Louis" Has Some More Hard Questions and Deep Secrets.

He is Afraid That Some of the Boys Will Turn Their Backs on Buchanan and Weaver.

To the Tobacco Leaf-Chronicle.

CLARKSVILLE, September 9.—Dear Buck: No; I can't find out how my letter to you got into the LEAF-CHRONICLE. I thought, perhaps, the postoffice folks had something to do with it, but after a few moments' reflection I knew they would not, for they are all Republicans and we are sorter running with them this time. How do you think it will work? Are you sure you can get enough votes from the Democrats to elect Winstead? The Democrats down here say you will not get a corporal's guard in the State. We must not fall. Of course you don't expect to be elected, but that don't make any difference, you have gotten all the glory out of the thing; there is in it for you, and you have made almost as much money out of it in two years as any Governor since the war made in four, and you will be even anyhow, provided you can succeed in electing Winstead governor. They are putting some pretty hard questions to us down here now, and they are dangerous questions.

You know we all claim to be Jeffersonian Democrats? Well, they ask us who we are going to vote for for president, and we are forced to say, "For Weaver." Then they ask, "Who for Congress?" and we answer, "For any one to beat Washington." Then they ask: "Who for Representative and Senator?" and we say for Ledbetter, and "Slaughter." They ask us then why we are going to vote against Cleveland, and we answer because he ain't with us on free silver; and then they say, "Well, Washington is for free silver, why do you vote against him?" And I tell you, Buck, a man can't retain his self-respect and double deal in this way. I am in favor of coming right out and acknowledging the corn, and saying, "Yes, we are for the Third party, and we want to bust the Democratic party into pieces, and if necessary to do so elect the Republicans." There is no use trying to hide it any longer, we might as well come out, we are not going to fool any more fellows, we have got as many, and I think more now than we can hold. We are for McDowell for the U. S. Senate, and everybody knows he is no Democrat, for he says so himself. I think John will run for Congress; he had us to endorse him for the place. Really, Buck, I think this carrying the thing too far. Of course he stands no earthly show to be elected, and there is no use making the thing ridiculous. The idea of John Allen in Congress is enough to make a clown ashamed of himself. Buck, it is carrying it too far. The whole independent movement will bust wide open in twenty-four hours after John publishes his announcement, and just as sure as you live he will run. He has got his head set that way and it is a thing too hard to be changed by an appeal to reason. Of course you know Slaughter is an independent candidate for the Senate. He is a good one. He had just as soon start from one post as another. When the flag drops he runs the way his head happens to be turned just at the moment, and he runs as fast as he can whether he stays on the main track or gets out into the bushes. Dick is still running. There are not two political parties in the State better matched than Dick and Slaughter. They are both possessed of will; they choose their own roads, kick the harness all to pieces whenever they feel like it, and both have plenty of wind. Dick's wind is a little stronger, but the supply is not quite so good as Slaughter's. Have you read Slaughter's platform? You ought to see it. Every man can stand on it, and if not, he has some planks left, already tongued and grooved to be inserted whenever he finds a man that is not satisfied.

Can't you hurry the election up? Every time the sun rises and sets we lose. The old Democrats—the men who fought in the war and who have worked in peace for the South, for the homes of the South and all these Southern folks hold dear are hesitating and many are going back to their first love.

They say: "We think Buck ought to have been nominated by the Democrats, but since he was not, we guess we had better stand by the party that stood by us, by our homes and by our wives and children; we cannot desert our Southland at this hour of trouble; we cannot follow men led by Weaver, a man who has said everything mean about the South that man could say." The old influences are hard to shake off, Buck, and every now and then I go off to myself and hang my head in shame, and pray the Lord to have mercy upon me while I am helping you and Weaver and McDowell break up the party my father belonged to, and my mother loved because it stood at her door and held aloof dangers and wrongs to our government and homes while she was raising me up to be a man, a voter and as she prayed a patriot. I started out to write you a "bracing" letter, Buck, but as I write I think, and when I think once, I think again, and then a whole train of thoughts rush into my brain. They are hard to resist, Buck, and I wish we had never got mad. I wish you had done right. You ought to have bounced McDowell long time ago. He never did mean good for you or for his State. When I look around me and see my children, and the children of my neighbors and ask myself the question, "Am I in favor of the white man ruling and educating these little ones?" and remember that all it can mean by going off and splitting the party is to put the negroes in control, my heart sinks and I am almost forced to turn back and go with the old party. I know the Democratic party is the party of the people, I know you can not be elected; I know that if we vote for Winstead's chances will be increased. Please write me at once, for I sometimes am almost persuaded to turn back into the old lines.

Respectfully,

LOUIS.

$500 Reward.

This amount the Lemon Chemical Co. proposes to pay to anyone who will prove that one of the testimonials concerning the wonderful effects of Lemon Chill Tonic are not genuine. Any one can write flattering articles and sign fictitious names, but "Lemon Chill Tonic" stands at the head as a Blood Purifier, a general tonic and appetizer. Lemon Chill Tonic is as pleasant as lemonade, and as large as the regular dollar size. Ask for Lemon Chill Tonic and insist on getting what you ask for. Take no substitute, but get a bottle, and you will thank this paper for drawing your attention to its merits. Price 50c. For sale and guaranteed by Clarksville Drug Co., Edwin Thomas, Jr., Manager.

BASE BALL.

The Pickings To-Day Will be Followed by Owensboro To-Morrow.

The game of ball between the Pickings and the Clarksville nine promises to be a good one. Clarksville has recently signed some new men, and they can put an excellent team on the diamond. The Port Royal boys play a good game of ball unless they have lost their coming, and have forgotten how to hit a sphere. They have been playing ball all their lives and are good ones. The game will be called at 3 o'clock this evening.

To-morrow evening, unless it rains, the Owensboro team will again oppose Clarksville. The home team will be fifty per cent. stronger than it was when Owensboro was here last, which will insure the best game that has been played in Clarksville this season. Let everybody turn out and yell for the home team. It will be a good game, well worth seeing.

Yes, We Mean You!

Have you a tired feeling, appetite poor and nothing tastes right to you? Have you a dizzy feeling when stooping over or a bad taste in your mouth? If so you are bilious and a 50c. bottle of Lemon Chill Tonic will make you feel like another person, brings back your appetite and you wonder why you haven't tried it long ago. Price 50c. Pleasant as lemonade. For sale and guaranteed by Clarksville Drug Co., Edwin Thomas, Jr., Manager.

DIED OF HIS WOUNDS.

Chas. Lowery, the Wounded Brakeman, Succumbs at Last.

Chas. Lowery, the brakeman who fell from the cars near Red river trestle Saturday morning, died Sunday morning about 1 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Welch, where he had been cared for since the accident. A large crowd of young people came down from Bowling Green to attend the burial. Floral designs were numerous. The remains were carried to Big Sandy last night and will be interred in the family burying ground to-day.

The demand for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea cure is steadily growing, from the fact that all who give it a trial are pleased with the results and recommend it to their neighbors. PLEASED AT PROSPECTS.

Geo. W. Winstead in Nashville And is Interviewed.

He Claims to be There For the Purpose of Making a List of Appointments.

Special to the Leaf-Chronicle.

NASHVILLE, Sept. 12.—Hon. G. W. Winstead, Republican nominee for Governor, is in the city to-day. In an interview he states that he had large crowds to hear him at his recent appointments in East Tennessee, and that he is pleased at his prospects. He has come to Nashville to arrange a further list of appointments in other parts of the State.

Death of Mrs. Louisa Duke.

Mrs. Louisa Duke died at the home of her brother, Prof. W. W. Yarrell, in this city Saturday, Sept. 10. Mrs. Duke had been ill about two months, and her death was not unexpected. It was a great blow, however, to her family, to whom she was greatly attached, and their patient and untiring ministrations during her last illness mutually attested the strength of a mutual affection. The deceased had long been a resident of the city, and was a lady of many admirable personal traits, and appreciated accordingly by those who knew her best. She was in her sixtieth year. She was a consistent member of the Methodist church. Her funeral took place this morning from her late residence, with service by Rev. Collins Denny. Interment at Greenwood.

Death of Stephen Williams.

Information was received by E. P. Turnley this morning of the death of Mr. Stephen Williams, which took place at his home, Pembroke, Ky., Sunday night, from typhoid pneumonia. The deceased was about fifty years of age, a highly respected citizen, whose death will be sorrowfully learned by a great many in this section of the country. No man more thoroughly enjoyed the confidence and esteem of his neighbors than did Stephen Williams. A devout member of the Baptist church, he was always foremost in every good work, dispensing charity and good counsel. The deceased was the father of Edwin and Susie Williams, both of whom are now living in Clarksville. He was also a brother-in-law of Mr. Ed. Turnley, Sr.

Annual Meeting Y. M. C. A.

The annual meeting of the members and friends of the Young Men's Christian Association will be held in the association rooms to-morrow evening, Sept. 13, at 7:30 o'clock. The order of business will be interspersed with music, and a pleasant evening is expected. A cordial invitation is extended to the public. The meeting will be open to ladies. The order of business will be as follows: 1. Annual report of the board of directors. 2. Revision of constitution and by-laws. 3. Election of ten new directors.

The Proposition Defeated.

Special to the Leaf-Chronicle.] NASHVILLE, Sept. 12.—The proposition of the Tennessee Midland railroad to the County of Davidson to submit to a vote of the people a subsidy to the road of $350,000 was defeated in the County court this morning by a vote of 31 to 20.

Business Increasing.

Business about the freight depot is on the increase. The fall goods are being received now in abundance, while considerable tobacco is also being handled.

NORA HOLLINGSWORTH

Waives Examination and is Remanded to Jail by 'Squire Caldwell.

Nora Hollingsworth was arraigned this morning before 'Squire Caldwell on the charge of murdering her husband, Thurston Hollingsworth. The defendant, through her attorneys, waived examination and was remanded to jail to await the action of the grand jury. The appearance of the prisoner was the signal for a very large crowd of colored people to repair to the court-house, the greater part of which followed her to the jail and showed considerable excitement.

Fishing in the Northwest.

Whoever passes along the main retail street of Seattle and happens to notice the counters in the principal fish store will be astonished. In the chromatic display of the captive creatures of the sea is the text for another chapter on future wealth for Washington. They have the salmon, though that catch is credited to Oregon and Alaska. There are in the northern waters cod banks thousands of miles in extent; halibut, codfish, rock cod, sole, sea bass, smelts, shrimps, herrings and oysters are all abundant. Apparently the fisheries outweigh those of the east as the timber belt exceeds that which once inclosed the great lakes.

Candor compels me to say that the Pacific fish, with one exception, are inferior to the same kinds of fish in the east, yet they are not wanting in fine qualities. The halibut of Washington and the north is, however, the finest fish for the table that is known in America. The tiny muddy oysters, the size of a dime or quarter, are the meaneast product of that sea, but they find a ready sale and are admired. Since that is so, hope for all the rest should be rampant. Their crabs, on the contrary, are not mere samples; they are wholesale products, regular marine mollusks, and all the better for that since they make good food.

The fishing that must in a few years face the waters of the Pacific with sails is scarcely begun. There is only a million invested in it, and only a million a year is produced by it.—Julian Ralph in Harper's.

Recognized Their Brother.

"I'm going to join the army, and will be gone three years," thus wrote a young man to his dear old mother and sister at home. The boy was under sentence to the state prison when he wrote the letter that his supposed would quiet all inquiry as to his whereabouts. He had been found guilty of forgery, and the judge in pronouncing sentence upon him gave him three years at hard labor in the Oregon penitentiary.

This was several months ago. One Sunday afternoon a couple of young ladies, sisters, new arrivals in Salem, visited the prison. They arrived too late to be admitted to the services, but were given seats in the waiting room. At the first sound from the choir they were interested, but as the music of the organ filled the chapel and they settled on their lungs, cough set in and finally terminated into consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could not live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles; it has cured me, and thank God I am now a well and hearty woman." Trial bottles free at Owen & Moore's Drug Store, regular size, 50 cents and $1.

THE GRAND REUNION

Of Old Confederate Soldiers of Tennessee at Franklin.

Forbes Bivouac Will Send a Large Delegation and They Expect a Good Time.

Many members of Forbes Bivouac will leave here to-morrow and Wednesday to attend the annual reunion of Confederate veterans at Franklin, Wednesday and Thursday. They are expecting a very pleasant meeting and it will be largely attended. The people of Franklin are making elaborate preparations to entertain the guests that will be there. The following special to the American from that place will give some idea of the interest the people are taking in the meeting:

"From the start of preparation that is going on among the various committees, the grand reunion of old Confederate soldiers of Tennessee to be held here next Wednesday and Thursday will be one of the greatest occasions in our town's history. A full meeting of the local committees on finances, barbecue and other matters was held Saturday and reports received. There have been subscribed from all parts of the county 275 carcasses for the grand barbecue, consisting of sheep, pigs and oxen. Thirteen long tables have been erected in McGavock's Grove, which will doubtless groan with the weight of eatables placed on them for the crowd. The tables have been neatly enclosed with a fence, so as to keep out stragglers and loafers, and the proper number will be allowed to pass in only at the gate under police supervision. Several hundred dollars have been subscribed by the citizens and all committees are well up in the work. Quite a number of responses to invitations have been received from distinguished soldiers and speakers, and many have promised to be present. The grand banquet will be a memorable event, as everything will be properly conducted by the committee of ladies and gentlemen. The young men will also give a grand ball, which is specially for the sons and daughters of the veterans and their visiting friends. Music and dancing will, of course, be the feature of the evening, and the beauties will be looking their best. The parade of the bivouac from all over the State will be an interesting sight, with the old battle flags now nearly in pieces and tatters. Half-fare on the various railroads of the State will no doubt induce the presence of a very large attendance. Franklin will throw open her doors once more to welcome the old soldiers of the lost cause."

It might be well to repeat in this connection, that a rate of $3.40 for the round trip has been given by the Louisville & Nashville railroad from Clarksville to Franklin to all who attend the reunion.

Pronounced Hopeless, Yet Saved.

From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd, of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally terminated into consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could not live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles; it has cured me, and thank God I am now a well and hearty woman." Trial bottles free at Owen & Moore's Drug Store, regular size, 50 cents and $1.
